Hilary Mantel is masterful in building immersive worlds inside her novels, and Beyond Black is no exception. It's perhaps overlong, but the main story is rolled out meticulously over 400+ pages. The element that work best for me is the abject loneliness of Alison, the novel's sad, bereft, and ultimately outcast protagonist.

"Beyond Black" is so, so different and so weird. Mantel deadpans into a surreal tale about a molested child and the spirits who haunt her and are subsequently exploited by her, as the adult medium who brings them to so-called life. It is easy to be beguiled by the twists of the plot and the subtle humor and grotesque characters.
